The British Pound has dropped to a ten-year low. That's really crazy. I remember when I visited the United Kingdom in 2007 and everything was really expensive, because the Pound was like two US dollars. You would see 6 piece KFC Nuggets for $5.99 which would be like twelve dollars here. That's so much money, but now, things have levelled out and it would only be about 6 dollars here now. We will be keeping a close eye on these recent developments, and what it might mean for global markets.

I saved this flag picture recently. I think it is the cutest flag i have ever seen. i generally like all of the Uk flags.

IT'S SEPTEMBER, THAT MEANS SCHOOL IS UNDERWAY.

This was going to be a column about school, but im sitting in a wendys parking lot and i just had a nugget that was like 2x the size of normal, it wasn't any good and was partially filled with air.

Back next month with much more. Thanks again for reading on Waugh magazine.

Have You Noticed?

We went undercover to a school in the Lake Area and discovered that there were NO students to be found, anywhere. The schools are totally empty. No students, no teachers, nothing. Where is everybody? We walked into the cafeteria and that's when we found our first clue... stay tuned for the next part of this mystery...
